Privacy

- Individual census responses are confidential. The information will not be used outside of the Census Bureau.
- This information will always be anonymous.
- The census will count numbers of people.
- Laws protect your information: Employees who share census data will be subject to jail time and fines up to $250,000.

Residency

- You will not be asked to disclose your citizenship status.
- Your immigration status does not matter to complete the census.
- The goal is a complete and accurate count of every resident in the United States.

Gender

- The census asks whether your Gender is Male or Female.
- If you do not respond, the census Bureau will use a statistical model to guess at what the answer “should” be.
- You can self-identify the gender you most closely identify with.
- If you leave the question blank, the chances of a follow-up visit by a census enumerator increase.

Housing

- If there are more people living in your residence than allowed by your landlord or housing voucher, answer honestly how many people live there. Include non-family members and all children born before April 1, 2020.
- Landlords cannot access your individual information or use data against you.
